COVID-19 VIRUS ILLUSTRATION

Statement by the artist Trebor and Georges Robert

The COVID-19 virus that I portrayed in my painting “Lest We Forget...” is a similar image that has been seen worldwide for nearly a year in almost every form of communication media. The original illustration of the coronavirus was initially commissioned by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta, Georgia (USA) and has been open-sourced since it first appeared. My intent in recreating a similar image was to make the COVID-19 virus in my painting easily recognizable in the diffusion of my “painting with a message”.
